Thieving stalls

Thieving is a good way to start making money. There are 5 different thieving stalls at home. They all give a unique item which can be sold to the merchant for money. The higher the requirement for the stall, the better gp/h*. A full inventory takes about 50 seconds if you are not misclicking.

Gp/hour can vary, depending on how much you fail thieving, mis-click or time you take between thieving and selling items. GP/hour on the stalls below are based on a minute per inventory.

Wearing a trimmed thieving cape gives you a 20% chance to loot noted items, increasing your GP/H a bit.

Banana stall

Thieving lvl requirement: 1

Price per full inventory: 27K gp

GP per hour: 1620K gp

General stall

Thieving lvl requirement: 25

Price per full inventory: 56K gp

GP per hour: 3360K gp

Crafting stall

Thieving lvl requirement: 50

Price per full inventory: 84K gp

GP per hour: 5040K gp

Magic stall

Thieving lvl requirement: 75

Price per full inventory: 112K gp

GP per hour: 6720K gp

Scimitar stall

Thieving lvl requirement: 90

Price per full inventory: 140K gp

GP per hour: 8400K GP

All of these stalls can also be found at the Elite sponsor zone. They give the same GP/H here, but about 40% more thieving XP.

These are pretty decent numbers, giving the fact a player can start thieving at any lvl, and don't require anything, even ironmen/women can immediately start doing this. A normal account can reach 90 thieving in less than an hour. Extreme accounts take a bit longer, but if double XP is on, or if you use double xp tomes, even on an extreme it goes prettu fast. Next up we have the 3 donator thieving stalls. Check out <https://www.runerealm.org/store/> and scroll to the bottom of the page to see how and when to unlock these zones.

Blood money will not be thieved until at least 90 thieving. This stall is the best one to thief at if you don't have the Elite sponsor zone unlocked. It will always give a bit more GP/H than it's level counterpart.*

Blood money is a popular custom currency. It can be spend in the blood money store at home, but it can also be traded to to other players. It drops from various medium to high lvl monsters, as well as from thieving Mounted coins. The general store buys Blood money for 70 GP each, but you'll be better off buying upgrades for yourself at the Blood money store, or sell those items, or just the Blood money to other players. Blood money sells for 150-275 GP each, depending on supply and demand.

Impling hunting

Hunting implings can be a good way to make money, especially at a high hunter lvl and having the donator, or super sponsor area unlocked. You can start training hunter at home or at the Super sponsor area, refer to our hunter guide to find out how to start out

<https://oldwiki.runerealm.org/books/skill-guides/page/99-hunter-guide>

The best money makers for hunter are catching Dragon and Lucky implings. The donator zone and super sponsor zone have a designated area with only these two sort of implings. There is also a bank in the same area, which allows you to empty your inventory very quick. You can sell these impling jars for respectively 55k and 63k each. You can also open them for items. Dragon implings give very good skilling items, and even some pvm items such as darts and arrows, though the overall value of what it contains is usually lower. Lucky impling jars give random clue scroll rewards. The odds of getting a high value unique is very small, so small that it isn't worth to open them if you want to make money fast. When you're done hunting, you can sell your impling jars to the general store.

Donator zone

Super sponsor training area

Super sponsor high lvl implings area

To get the best rates, i wouldn't advice catching either Dragon or Lucky implings. While Lucky implings sell for more money, you might slow down on having to actually look for Ninja implings and lose time.

You'll catch about 27 implings per minute. If your clicks are on point, you could even bank and withdraw empty impling jars in this minute.

$27 \times 60 \text{ minutes} = 1620 \text{ implings per hour}$

General store price Dragon impling jar: 55569 GP

General store price Lucky impling jar: 63644 GP

Average value per inventory: 1.609M GP

Average income per hour: 96.540M GP

Income may vary if you catch more or less of a certain impling. Above stated numbers are in an ideal situation. Actual income may be lower.

Rogue's chest

This guide is a small version of the ironman guide on Rogue's chest and Larran's chest written by Green. To read the full guides, please refer to: <https://oldwiki.runerealm.org/books/ironman-guide>

Foreword:

Rogues chest is one of the best supply sources for ironmen to exist. Even for regular players, Rogue's chest offers a wide variety of skilling supplies, making it a rather 'easy' spot to make money. Still you have to always keep in mind: The bigger the gains, the higher the risk. Since the rogues chest is in the deep wilderness, it is even riskier for HCIM since that place could cause your death by a player kill.

Requirements:

The Rogues' chest requires a thieving lvl of 50, but it scales with your thieving lvl. Means --> the higher your thieving lvl is, the higher loot and the more thieving XP you'll get.

Mandatories and Recommendations/Setup

Mandatories:

Besides other helpful items and setups, the amulet of avarice is the key item and therefore mandatory.

The amulet of avarice basically skulls you and what's more important: it notes the loot that you get from the Rogues' chest, so that you can grind it for longer and don't have to run and bank it all over again since you can get like 15 uncut gems unnoted and that will fill your inventory pretty fast.

Another important item is the ring of wealth (i), since this one will boost the amount of loot from the chest so you get way more loot than you would get without the ring of wealth (i).

Last you will need a looting bag. This item goes really well with the amulet of avarice. You leave it open in your inventory so that all the noted loot gets in your looting bag instead of your inventory. This is pretty helpful, since then you can setup some gear, barrage runes, food and prayer pots in case someone's willing to PK you.

Recommendations/Setup:

Since you now have all your mandatories we can start with your gear and inventory setup:
 Basically get yourself some high tier food, some prayer and magic pots and your barrage that boosts your magic accuracy.

Starting route/loot from 1 hour/escape route

Starting route:

Starting off at home, click on your spellbook --> Wilderness teleport --> Rogues' Castle (lvl 51) front of the castle. From there you walk around the castle until Arrived, you have to stay between the 2 chests. I highly recommend to do the 1-tick technique. This way you will be looting way faster than you would just by spam clicking one chest. Just try it until you get the hang of it, its not that difficult.

Here's an example of what it looks like and how much faster it is:

1-tick technique:

Loot from 1 hour:

This is the average loot from 1 hour of 1-ticking the rogues' chests (with thieving 99, looting bag, row (i) and the amulet of avarice):

4280	1412	6564	1398
2876	524	12326	5714
5101k	3590	266k	1536
208	3866	1864	11760
582	2756	1086	38
82	520	1182	44

The value of this inventory is 80M if you sell everything to the general store. This is excluding possible loot from Larran's keys and clue scrolls. So the average GP/H at 99 thieving in an optimal situation would be roughly 80M an hour.

Escape route:

Being at the deepest wilderness it wouldn't make to much sense to run across the whole wilderness. Therefore you have to know a better and faster alternative.

Click on the 4 obelisks and they will start to shine purple. When you go outside of the castle and

Click on one of the 4 obelisks and they will start to shine purple. when that happens you have to quickly run to the middle of them so you get teleported out.

If you do you will be randomly teleported to a different wilderness obelisk. Sometimes it happens that you get teleported to a obilisk that is still in deep wilderness, so repeat it until you get teleported to a obelisk that is below the wilderness lvl 20. Then you can just use the home teleport to escape.

Revenants

Introduction

Revenants is a good, but dangerous way to make money. Making money off revenants is by killing Revenants, in the revenants cave in the Wilderness. They are in the middle/upper east side of the cave, between lvl 28 and 35 wilderness, inside a multi-combat zone. There is a direct teleport from the wilderness teleport menu in the spellbook, which brings you to the northern entrance in lvl 41 wilderness. When you enter the cave, walk southeast/south, past the black dragons and you will run straight into revenants. Revenants can do a lot of damage to you, but if you wear a charged Bracelet of Ethereum, they will do little damage to you. Bracelet of ethereum is dropped in its uncharged form from Revenants. Revenants drop Ether, which can be used to charge the bracelet. Each hit you take will deplete a charge from the bracelet. Due to the risk of being killed by other players, makes that killing Revenants is a dangerous activity. They're drops are very valuable, they even drop a few high value unique items, a few weapons, which do extra damage when used inside the wilderness, are considered very valuable.

Equipment and inventory

You should bring equipment depending on how much you are willing to risk. Some players choose to only bring 3 valuable items, so if they get pked, they always keep these. Others dare to take more risk and bring their best in slot items, which makes the punishment harder if you die, but you're also more resilient against pkers. For this money making guide, i used an overall cheap set. Note that you can bring both melee or ranged, and that the wilderness weapons are considered the best to bring when killing Revenants. A few items to point out you should bring Looting bag: A looting bag can hold up to 28 items for you. You can store your loot inside it, but you can not withdraw from it when inside the wilderness. You can empty your looting bag when outside the wilderness, or straight into your bank when at a bank.

Amulet of avarice: Amulet of avarice skulls you when equipped, which makes you lose all of your items when you die inside the wilderness. The good thing is, the amulet notes all of your loot at Revenants, which allows you to stay a lot longer at revenants, especially when combined with a looting bag. Additionally, being skulled (with or without the amulet) at Revenants or Crystal npcs in the wilderness gives you a hidden +10% drop rate boost on the rare table. The downside is that if you die, you'll lose all of your loot and your equipment, making it a risky, but certainly valuable decision if you take it.

I've used this set-up to make this guide

This is my loot from 1 hour killing revenants

Price Checker
11	1	25	64	364	25
12,472 x11 = 137,192	59,544 x1 = 59,544	5,000 x25 = 125,000	6,358 x64 = 406,912	255 x364 = 92,820	8,000 x25 = 200,000

20,793 x3 = 62,379	17,622 x4 = 70,488	38,659 x3 = 115,977	11,188 x16 = 179,008	24,570 x6 = 147,420	11,990 x6 = 71,940

227 x203 = 46,081	128 x100 = 12,800	8,803 x34 = 299,302	2,187 x188 = 411,156	112 x100 = 11,200	2,225 x8 = 17,800

I've not included rare drops. In this hour i also got 3 weapons, which sell for 17m to the general store, upping the average loot per hour to 57m. This is very high, but can be vary heavily if you get rare drops or not. I've got this with a 75% boosted rare drop rate. Note that gp/h can vary depending on what set-up you bring and if there are other players around.

If you position yourself around here, you continuously aggro the warrior and the dragon, which give the best loot of all revenants. Since this is the highest part of the revenants, it's also the most risky place. The lower you go, the closer you are to a lvl where you can teleport, but the revenants there are easier to kill thus have less good loot. Despite the dragon using fire, it will not damage you as long as you wear a charged Bracelet of ethereum.
